Galleria Raffaella Cortese is pleased to present AniManiMism, Michael Fliri's third solo show since his first collaboration with the gallery in 2007.

Fliri's practice is at the intersection of performance, sculpture, photography and video. His work, which cannot be summarized in a single definition, investigates concepts such as metamorphosis, mutation and disguise. The protagonists of his works – often the artist himself – continuously undergo a process of alteration or transformation, where body, landscape and metaphors merge into an engaging whole. His research, focused on investigating identity, manifests itself through the recurring theme of the mask and therefore the partial concealment and change of the face. Pursuing this common thread, the artist is showing a video work and recent photographs.

On view in the space at via Stradella 4, the four-channel video installation AniManiMism, which gives the title to the exhibition, was produced and first exhibited on the occasion of Fliri's expansive solo show at De Garage, Cultuurcentrum Mechelen, Mechelen, Belgium in 2017. The work achieves a tremendous poetic and evocative force linked to metamorphosis: the hands, moving a mask made of transparent materials, create a play of shadows projected onto a cloth. In front of this "dance," viewers bear witness of the infinite possibilities of image creation. Hands, often present in Fliri's works and frequently evoked for their inherent shaping potential, echo in the words that make up the title of the exhibition: "mani" ("hands" in Italian) and "animation."

Metamorphosis is also at the core of the new photographic series My Private Fog II, exhibited in the space at via Stradella 1. Fliri further develops the theme of the encounter between face and mask, its changes and the new possible creations that this union can generate. The artist previously explored these ideas subjects in the photographic series entitled My Private Fog I (2014). The artist's breath, altering the mask's transparency, exponentially decreases the visibility of the face itself. This creates images that, informed by the landscape that distinguishes Fliri's birthplace and home, South Tyrol, allude to shapes such as those of crystals, glaciers and snowy peaks.

"For me, transformation represents new possibilities, new opportunities," says the artist. "Everything is in motion and isn't defined. The idea of the undefined is what interests me most." The central focus of his work thus raises questions about creation and identity: what determines whom? What we are? How do we form the image of ourselves? Are we really who we think we are?

Michael Fliri was born in Tübingen (Germany) in 1978. He lives and works between Innsbruck, Zurich and Tübingen. His works have recently been featured at: Cultuurcentrum Mechelen (2017); Mu.ZEE, Ostend (2017); Centro per l'Arte Contemporanea Luigi Pecci, Prato (2017-2011); Museion, Bolzano (2016); Mambo, Bologna (2016); MACRO, Roma (2016); Galerie im Taxispalais, Innsbruck (2016); Kunstsammlungen, Chemnitz (2016); Mart - Museo di Arte Contemporanea di Trento e Rovereto (2015); Kunsthalle Düsseldorf (2015); Biennial of Moving Image Contour, Mechelen, Belgium (2015); Zeppelin Museum, Friedrichshafen (2014); MAC, Lissone (2013); Centre Pompidou, Paris (2012); Generali Foundation, Vienna (2010); Mart - Museo di Arte Contemporanea di Trento e Rovereto (2010); 3rd Moscow Biennale (2009); Fondazione Merz, Turin (2009); HangarBicocca, Milan (2009); Galleria Civica, Trento (2008).
